Undertale: The First Soul

Undertale: The First SOUL

Chara had fallen down a mountain. Mount Ebott to be precise. They were unsure of how exactly they got there but they were here. And their leg hurt like hell.

"Hello? Is anyone there? Can I get help?" They cried out. They then waited for someone to come by.

But Nobody Came.

Well, that was until a small goat like child emerged.

"Hi there! Are you okay?" the Goat child said.

"More or less. But I think I broke my leg." Chara responded. They were glad to get some help but at the same time stunned to see a goat person. It's not the sort of thing you see regularly.

"Oh. Let me help you up." The goat child responded, extending their hand out to assist.

"Thanks." Chara said. It was basically all their stunned mouth could manage.

"Don't mention it. So anyway, what's your name?" They said.

"It's Chara." Chara said in response.

"Chara, huh. That's a nice name. My name is Asriel." Asriel said.

"So where are we going?" Chara asked. They had noticed that Asriel was taking them somewhere.

"I'm taking you to my house. My mom knows some healing magic for your leg." Was Asriel's response.

"Oh. Thanks." Chara said.

They wandered through a seemingly endless cave, with a snowy landscape, a lava land and a swamp like area until they finally got to Asriel's home. It was a lot like where they had started but this time, everything was grey.

"Greetings, my child..." Is what they were greeted with. There was a large goat person sitting in a room that resembled a living room. She was wearing a blue dress. If Chara had to guess, they would assume this to be Asriel's mother. She stared with a shocked expression on her face at Chara.

"M-My child, surely that is not what I think it is, is it?" Is what they said.

"Do you think it's a human?" Asriel said

"Yes" was all his mother managed to say back to him.

"Then yes, it is," Asriel said. "Can you heal them?" He continued.

"I-I think so." Said his mother.

One week later

Chara woke up in a bed. They were lying in a bedroom. There were two beds at either side and shelves in between them. Aside from that, there was a shoebox at the foot of their bed.

"Oh you're up!" Asriel said. Chara had just now realised that they were lying in the bed opposite to them. He seemed happy.

"Um... Yeah, I'm up. Was I out for long?" Chara said. They were unsure about just what had happened. One moment, they were in front of Asriel's mother and the next, they were here in this bed.

"You were sleeping for a whole week! I thought you'd never wake up! I'll go get Mom!" He said. Clearly he was excited. Chara was unsure of why. They were also unsure of how they fell asleep. Blood loss? Probably. As they continued to think, they overheard a conversation.

"They're awake dad! We need to get mom!" Asriel said. Clearly he was speaking to his father. The reply came with a gentle but firm voice.

"Alright alright, I'll get her. Toriel!" Asriel's father shouted. So his mother's name was Toriel. That was something Chara needed to remember.

"Coming, Asgore!" Was the response that Toriel gave. With it, Chara had now learned that Asgore was Asriel's father.

They all came in to the room and were soon sitting at Chara's bedside.

"Are you okay?" Said Toriel.

"I think so." They said in response.

"Excellent. Now, do you know who we can take you back to?" Toriel said. This statement was a little shocking to Chara. They left their home to escape and now they had to leave if they answered honestly. The remained silent.

"Come on Tori, The kid's probably not 100% yet. It's a bit early to think about how to get them back, don't you think?" Asgore said. Chara nodded their head slowly at Asgore's response.

"Oh, alright then. For now, you can stay with us."

There you go! My first Undertale story in ages! I'll be continuing this when I can but I have a few other stories to manage. Sorry this chapter was so dull but it's just the beginning it'll get better, trust me. If you have a question or request, then leave a review or send me PM. I'll get to it ASAP. See ya!
